FELICITATIONS

To KEEP fresh the names and faces of classmates and teachers—for delightful reminiscences of another day . . . To record a few of the year's frivolous incidents, and some of its serious ones, too—all for smiles in the future . . . To congratulate you on the year's splendid achievement—the year when youth blossoms into young manhood and young womanhood, with life's obligations, opportunities—yes, and pitfalls—just ahead; the year of your graduation . . . To express the very earnest hope that the not distant future will see the happy fruition of all your hopes and plans; that the splendid education you worked so long and so hard to get, will yield you rich dividends, as it was intended it should, in health, happiness and success . . . All this—and more—is the purpose of this friendly little brochure, which you will please accept with the compliments of
